The Massachusetts Democrat said she agreed to speak Sunday at the Islamic Society of Boston Cultural Center at the urging of staffer Hamza Abdelgany, who is a member of the mosque, which has graduated no fewer than 13 terrorists and recently was caught on video defending many of the terrorists, even after they were convicted in federal court.

Warren spoke before the congregation for several minutes chiefly to complain about "anti-Muslim hate" allegedly inspired by the election of GOP President-elect Donald Trump.

Charles Jacobs, founder of Boston-based Americans for Peace and Tolerance, told CJ that he is "very concerned" that a member of a mosque that supports and even raises money for the legal defense of known terrorists has such political clout. He said that Warren's ill-considered visit bestowed undue legitimacy on ISB.

ISB operates two mosques: one in Roxbury, where the so-called "interfaith" event attended by Warren was held, and the other in Cambridge, where several terrorists and terrorist supporters have worshipped, including:

- Boston Marathon bombers Dzhokhar Tsarnaev and Tamerlan Tsarnaev;
- Aafia Siddiqui, aka Lady al-Qaida, who raised money for the terror group in area mosques and is serving an 86-year federal sentence for trying to murder a US Army captain in Afghanistan, where she was captured with plans to carry out a chemical attack on New York City;
- ISB imam Abdullah Faaruq, who was heard on tape urging sentence for trying to murder a US Army captain in Afghanistan, where she was captured with plans to carry out a chemical attack on New York City:

- ISB imam Abdullah Faaruq, who was heard on tape urging Boston Muslims to "pick up the gun and the sword" to defend Siddiqui during her 2010 trial.
- Tarek Mehanna, who in 2012 got 17 years in federal prison for conspiring to use automatic weapons to murder shoppers in a suburban Boston mall, as well as for conspiring to aid Al Qaeda;
- Ahmad Abousamra, an indicted terrorist co-conspirator of Mehanna who fled to Syria in 2006 where he resurfaced as a top ISIS propagandist and was added to the FBI's Most Wanted Terrorists list in 2013, where he remains today.
- ISB congregant Rezwan Ferdous, who in 2012 got 17 years in federal prison for plotting to attack the Pentagon and US Capitol with remote-controlled airplane bombs.
- ISB major donor Oussama Ziade, who was indicted in 2009 for dealing with terrorist funds and is now a fugitive living in Lebanon.
- ISB co-founder Abduraham Alamoudi, who was sentenced in 2004 to 23 years in prison for plotting terrorism and identified by the US government as a top Muslim Brotherhood figure as well as a key al-Qaida fundraiser in America.
- ISB founding trustee Yusuf Qaradawi, who was placed on the US terror watchlist after calling for violent jihad against US troops in Iraq and is currently the subject of an Interpol arrest warrant on charges of incitement to murder.
- Jamal Badawi, another former trustee who in 2007 was named an unindicted co-conspirator in a plan to funnel more than $12 million to Palestinian suicide bombers.

ISB leadership also includes Abdul-Malik Merchant, an associate imam who recently was forced to apologize to the Jewish community for posting anti-Semitic posts on social media.

ISB member Tamerlan Tsarnaev, who was caught on surveillance videotape planting a bomb along the Boston Marathon route, became an angry jihadist after joining the mosque. According to his ex-girlfriend, "One minute he was a normal guy, the next minute he is watching these crazy Muslim videos."

In 2011, ISB hosted an event in support of no fewer than 22 terrorists who were convicted of providing material support for al-Qaeda, Hamas, Palestinian Jihad and Pakistani terrorist groups — including Siddiqui, Alamoudi and Mehanna. During the event, which was caught on video, relatives of the terrorists bashed the FBI, the Justice Department and the US government; and at least one speaker called for violent jihad against the US.

Still, Warren stood where they stood and bashed the president-elect.

"I am very concerned about how Donald trump is beginning to define his administration with the people he personally is picking to lead this country," Warren said, while claiming that "since the election attacks on racial and religious groups have skyrocketed."

"Now is a time when we must be willing to say loud and clear there is no room for bigotry anywhere in the United States of America — none," she said. "An attack on one of us is an attack on all of us, and we will fight back against discrimination whenever and wherever it occurs."

Six prominent religious leaders fired off a letter criticizing Warren for agreeing to appear at the mosque, arguing she provided "political cover to one of the most intolerant jihadist mosques in America."

one of the most intolerant jihadist mosques in America."

Warren was invited by ISB member Hamza Abdelgany, a staff assistant working out of Warren's Quincy, Mass., office. Abdelgany was involved with the Muslim Students Association while attending the University of Massachusetts at Boston. The US government says MSA is a front group for the radical Muslim Brotherhood, which supports violent jihad and conspires to one day bring the US and other Western nations under Islamic rule.

"The Muslim Brotherhood was founded in Egypt ... Its ultimate goal is the creation of a global Islamic State governed by Sharia law," U.S. Attorney James T. Jacks said in a 2008 court filing related to a major terrorism case. "Muslim Brotherhood members first migrated to the United States in the 1960s, where they began their grassroots work on campuses through an organization called the Muslim Students Association."

ISB is run by the Muslim American Society, a known Muslim Brotherhood front group which also runs the so-called "9/11 mosque" in the Washington area, Dar al-Hijrah Islamic Center.

Ilya Feoktistov, director of research for Americans for Peace and Tolerance, said that by ignoring ISB's well-documented ties to terrorists, Warren is serving as an "enabler" of jihad.

A new WBUR poll finds only 44 percent of voters think Sen. Elizabeth Warren "deserves reelection." Forty-six percent think voters ought to "give someone else a chance." (Carolyn Kaster/AP)

Over four years in office, Elizabeth Warren has staked her claim as the Senate's liberal lion. And many Massachusetts voters like it — 51 percent view her favorably.

But according to a new WBUR poll, only 44 percent think Warren "deserves reelection." Forty-six percent think voters ought to "give someone else a chance."

"No one's going to look at a 44 percent reelect number and think that that's a good number," said Steve Koczela, president of The MassINC Polling Group, which conducts surveys for WBUR. "No one's going to look at it being close to even between 'reelect' and 'give someone else a chance' and think that that's even between 'reelect' and 'give someone else a chance' and think that that's reassuring."

The live telephone survey (topline, crosstabs) of 508 voters across Massachusetts was conducted Jan. 15-17. It has a margin of error of 4.4 percentage points.

Warren's numbers contrast sharply with those of Gov. Charlie Baker. His favorability rating is 59 percent — 8 points better than Warren. But what's more striking is that only 29 percent of poll respondents think someone else should get a chance at the governor's office.

How could the state's top Republican be more popular than its top Democrat? Koczeła says it's about bipartisanship.

"When you look at Elizabeth Warren's favorables, only 12 percent of Republicans have a favorable view of her," Koczeła said. "When you look at Baker, 60 percent of Democrats view him favorably. So he has bipartisan appeal, where Elizabeth Warren really never has."

And Warren's bare-knuckle tactics don't appear to be softening. That was on display last week at the confirmation hearing of Betsy DeVos, Donald Trump's pick to head the Department of Education.

"Do you support protecting federal taxpayer dollars from waste, fraud and abuse?" Warren asked.

"Absolutely," DeVos replied.

"Oh good, so do I!" Warren said. "Because we all know that President-elect Trump's experience with higher education was to create a fake university, which resulted in his..."

President-elect Trump's experience with higher education was to create a fake university, which resulted in his paying $25 million to students that he cheated."

The settlement reached in November does not require Trump to acknowledge wrongdoing. The Trump Organization's general counsel, Alan Garten, said in a statement: "While we have no doubt that Trump University would have prevailed at trial based on the merits of this case, resolution of these matters allows President-Elect Trump to devote his full attention to the important issues facing our great nation."

One of the voters surveyed in our poll was Peter Anderson, of Wilmington. Anderson supports Warren's work, but he doesn't like incumbent candidates and thinks someone else should have a shot at Warren's seat.

"I don't think that as a group they're doing any sort of a good job," he said. "I think they should all be replaced."

While Baker outperforms Warren with voters, it's not all good news for the governor. The WBUR poll shows Baker's approval down 10 points from its peak of 69 percent in June.

Baker faces significant voter discontent on several issues, including the cost of housing and health care. More than 60 percent of poll respondents say they're somewhat or very dissatisfied with those issues. People are most upbeat about jobs and the economy, with 57 percent responding that they are somewhat or very satisfied. Forty-seven percent say they're dissatisfied with the state's transportation system.

Craig Cafarelli is an independent who voted for Baker in 2014. The Mendon resident says he'll do it again in 2018.

"[Baker] seems to be a very pragmatic guy," Cafarelli said. "He's not looking to score points with certain lobbyists or certain groups. I'm sure there's some of that — there is with every politician — but he seems to be somewhat independent-minded."

One of the Democrats who supports Baker is Binnie Estrada, of Newton. But Estrada says the Republican landslide in November changed something.

"If Hillary had won I'd vote for Baker next time around," she said. "But I don't want to see any Republicans any place. I'm feeling really overwhelmed by what the Republicans are doing."

Another issue explored in the WBUR poll is the effort to increase taxes for people who earn over $1 million a year. Seventy-seven percent support the so-called millionaire's tax, while 17 percent oppose.

called millionaire's tax, while 17 percent oppose.

Kozcela, the pollster, says that could be one of many issues that could affect Baker and Warren.

"What position Charlie Baker decides to take on that question I think could be interesting and important, especially if he and Elizabeth Warren take opposite positions on that question," Kozcela said. "That could be a political dynamic worth watching."

Warren has declared she will run again in 2018. So far Baker hasn't announced, though his \$4.7 million war chest tops Warren's by half a million dollars.

And the elections are still nearly two years away.

HODGSON SAYS PROTEST RAISED TENSIONS INSIDE JAIL

Bristol County Sheriff Tom Hodgson says protesters who rallied outside the Ash Street Jail this past week raised the tension level inside the jail which almost sparked an incident.

Hodgson tells WBSM's Ken Pittman, problems started when protesters used a bull-horn to deliver their message.

"Some inmates started to shake their cells a little bit. You're starting to create a potential hazard for my staff and other inmates we're in charge of providing care and custody," said Hodgson.

The Sheriff added, "I'm not against people protesting, everybody has the right, it's America, but you've got to think about what you're doing."

No one was hurt inside the Jail.

The protesters were critical of the Sheriff's plan to use House of Correction inmates to help build President Donald Trump's wall on the U.S.-Mexican border to keep out illegal immigrants. Demonstrators carrying signs said the program amounted to slave labor.

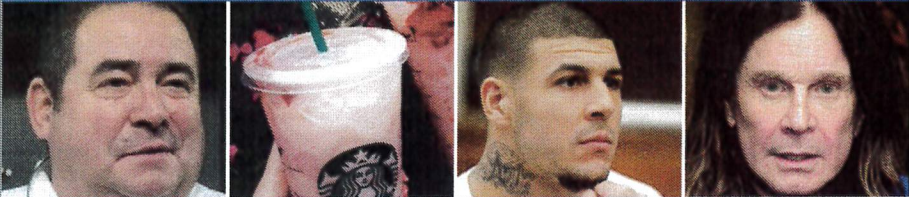

Hodgson says the program would be completely voluntary, and enable inmates to learn a skill.

DID AARON HERNANDEZ WATCH THE PATRIOTS WIN THE SUPER BOWL?

Did convicted murderer Aaron Hernandez watch his former Patriots teammates beat the Atlanta Falcons in the Super Bowl from his jail cell on Sunday?

While Tom Brady was leading the Patriots to an historic victory in the Super Bowl, Aaron Hernandez was likely watching it on TV along with millions of other football fans. Unlike most of the viewers he was locked in a maximum security prison cell. He will likely watch all of the remaining Super Bowls in a jail cell because he was convicted of murder in 2015. Additionally, he is going on trial for soon for two additional murders in Boston.

I spoke with Christopher Fallon, Director of Communications for the Department of Communications today and he explained that inmates like Hernandez could watch the game in their cell if they had purchased a television from the prison store. Fallon didn't reveal any details specific to the former Patriot citing privacy regulations.

I think it is a safe assumption that Hernandez has a television in his cell. I doubt it is like the enormous flat screen TV he grew accustomed to as a millionaire super star in the NFL before he became a convicted murderer, but it beats nothing. According to Fallon, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts does not provide cable television, so Hernandez could only pick up the game on his TV with an antenna. He watched the game with the same quality picture America watched the Pittsburgh Steelers in the 1970's and probably on a smaller screen.

Great food and beverages are almost as important to the people watching the Super Bowl as the game itself. Unfortunately for Hernandez the Department of Corrections isn't a great host for a Super Bowl party. Fallon explained to me the meals are planned far in advance by dieticians and they pay no attention to the Super Bowl when selecting the menu.

Carr: William Weinreb not the man for US attorney

By HOWIE CARR | howard.carr@medianewsgroup.com | Boston Herald

PUBLISHED: May 3, 2017 at 12:00 am | UPDATED: November 17, 2018 at 12:00 am

What is wrong with this picture?

William Weinreb, the acting U.S. attorney in Boston, wants President Trump to give him the top federal prosecutor's job here permanently.

Are you kidding me? Let's look at the big money Weinreb, a card-carrying moonbat, has been duking to Democrats — never a Republican pol, always Democrats. All of the following comes directly from the website of the Federal Elections Commission (FEC):

Last Oct. 10, Weinreb wrote a $1,000 check to Hillary for America.

On Oct. 7, 2012, he wrote a $1,000 check to then-Senate candidate Elizabeth Warren, the fake Indian.

One day later, he whipped out his checkbook again and wrote a $1,000 check to the Obama/Biden re-election campaign.

And back on Sept. 6, 2008, Weinreb maxed out to the first Obama presidential campaign with a $2,300 check.

If Trump and Attorney General Jeff Sessions want to drain the swamp, why would they possibly appoint as the top prosecutor in Boston somebody who's been eagerly funneling thousands of dollars in cash to the absolute dregs of said swamp?

On the state level, Weinreb has also ponied up to some of the local swamp things. In 2010, he gave $500 to then-Governor's Councilor Michael Albano, the former mayor of Springfield, whose local newspaper described Albano's City Hall "tenure as marked by corruption and financial disarray."

In 2006, Weinreb handed $200 to Gerry Leone, then the district attorney of Middlesex County. In 2013, Leone was one of the listed character witnesses at the judicial-nomination hearings of Mary Beth Hefferan, the second-generation hack judge who last week reduced the bail of a once-deported alleged rapist of a Boston College student from the $100,000 requested by the prosecutor to $2,500, after which the man vanished.

Weinreb was the acting U.S. attorney last winter when the feds busted a three-state ring of alleged heroin/fentanyl dealers here. Even though the DEA's supporting affidavit identified at least six of them as Dominican illegal immigrants, Weinreb's press release declined to point out their immigration status. It's just not politically correct, especially if you're from Newton.

After repeated inquiries, Weinreb's office finally acknowledged that at least 10 of the 23 indicted drug dealers were illegal immigrants from the Dominican.

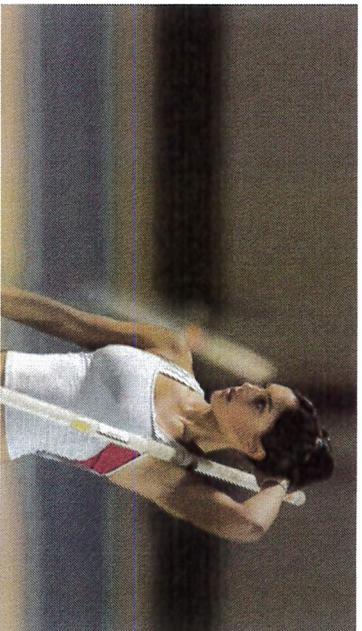

Not everybody in the U.S. attorney's office is a moonbat. Surely the DOJ can find somebody who sincerely wants to lock up hacks, illegal immigrants and assorted other Democrats instead of handing them an all-expenses-paid weekend at the Ritz.

Sessions used to serve with Frank McNamara, the former U.S. attorney here. If you want to season some younger fed here for a while, I'll bet Frank would take the reins for a year or two. Plus, McNamara worked hard last year for Trump, not Hillary.

Which is more than the current acting U.S. attorney in Boston can say.

Hi Chris. Congrats on the new show. Sheriff asked me to get in touch. He mentioned you wanted him to come on sometime. Right now, our best bet is a call in tomorrow or an in-studio on Tuesday or Wednesday. Also, if you want to set something regular up, say every Friday or every other Wednesday or the first Thursday of the month or whatever, we're open to that as well. -- Jonathan

Jonathan - we do enough together to have you call or text me - my number is 781-308-5662 - send me a text when you have a moment so we can communicate rapidly when needed. Thanks
