Bulletproof Vest Saves Officer in Shootout Outside Bellagio in Las Vegas; Robbery Suspect Critically Wounded

Fox News, (03/16/2019), Louis Casiano

A Las Vegas police officer was saved by his bulletproof vest when he was wounded by a robbery suspect during a shootout outside the Bellagio casino. The suspect allegedly held up a cashier at gunpoint, then attempted a carjacking in the parking lot. He fired at responding officers, striking one in the chest; the suspect in turn was then wounded by return fire.

Positive Change Seen Since Partnership Between Police & Behavioral Health Specialists

KEPR, (03/13/2019), Eliana Sheriff

A program partnering police officers and mental health specialists in Tri-Cities, Wash., is helping direct people with mental health issues to helpful resources. The goal of the mobile outreach team is to reduce recidivism rates. For example, sometimes people who are homeless or have chronic behavior issues sleep in parks and get in trouble for trespassing, and end up in jail repeatedly. The team follows up with people they help, including ensuring they're going to appointments.

Georgia District Launches ID Card, Crisis Alert Systems

Campus Security & Life Safety, (03/15/2019), Jessica Davis

Schools in Douglas County are introducing an access card system and crisis alert system to improve safety. The access card system requires students and staff to use ID badges to access specific areas. The crisis alert system gives every staff member on a campus a device that can be used to trigger an instant school-wide alert.

Alerting First Responders to Loved Ones' Special Needs in Louisa

The Daily Progress, (03/16/2019)

The Louisa County Sheriff's Office is working with family members and firefighters, rescue squads and dispatchers to create an information base to help first responders interact better with individuals with special needs. The program will allow family members to provide information for the database, for example, about loved ones' triggers, as well as de-escalation techniques. In an emergency, the stored information can be relayed to responders.

Director Says Job Re-Entry Program Credited With Inmate Population Drop, Recidivism Rate Decline

WIS, (03/15/2019), Sam Bleiweis

The director of the South Carolina Department of Corrections says a job re-entry program is one reason for a decline in the three-year recidivism rate from 23.4 percent in 2011 to 22.3 percent in fiscal year of 2015. SCDC Director Bryan Stirling also credits sentencing reform in 2010 for a drop in prison population.

Georgia Supreme Court Ruling Forces Removal of GPS Devices From Sex Offenders

The Augusta Chronicle, (03/16/2019), Jozsef Papp

Local sheriff's offices have removed electronic monitoring devices from sexually dangerous predators after a ruling by the Georgia Supreme Court. The court ruled March 4 that it is unconstitutional for sexually dangerous predators no longer in custody, on probation or on parole to have to wear and pay for a GPS monitoring device for the rest of their lives. Justices deemed the law violated the Fourth Amendment, which protects against unreasonable searches and seizures.

Electronic Evidence

In a recent PoliceOne poll, 89% of law enforcement respondents said they have been videotaped by bystanders while on duty. In this issue of The Briefing, we're discussing the impact of electronic evidence. Cell phone video and surveillance system footage are often released by onlookers in the aftermath of use of force events, but there are limitations of its use as evidence. On the contrary, data recovered from a search warrant of a suspect's device(s) can prove to be significant evidence, but again, there are limitations - this time, in how the digital evidence is retrieved. Additionally, a newer form of video observation is becoming increasingly popular with public safety agencies - drones. Read more about the key areas for consideration to ensure their legal and safe use.

Dear PoliceOne Member,

What's in a word? Plenty, according to Minneapolis Mayor Jacob Frey who added fuel to the ongoing warrior vs. guardian debate in April when he announced a ban on "fear-based, warrior-style training" for Minneapolis cops.

Today's newsletter features several articles that address the issue. Lt. Dan Marcou outlines why training officers for survivability by managing their fear is key to protecting both cops and civilians, Lt. David Pearson argues a Jedi mindset could serve as a balance between a warrior and guardian, and Kyle McLean details research into the existence of the warrior and guardian mentalities among police officers.

What are your thoughts on Mayor Jacob's actions? Email editor@policeone.com.

Michael,

This is Jacob Bradshaw with IDIS America (end to end security solutions manufacturer), and I was hoping to speak with the person in charge of the surveillance systems at your facilities.

If you haven't run into IDIS before, we offer a plethora of security solutions/services, and work with law enforcement agencies all over New York. Some of the value we bring, for instance, includes:

- 1. Facial Recognition
- 2. Deep Learning Analytics Engine(built into VMS)
- 3. Direct CX(backwards-forwards compatible)

Historically, we've been able to save folks in your role 30-40% annually of total cost of ownership, and are compatible with 100% of the systems on the market. Please let me know if this would be of value to you, and I'd be happy to demo our free software, at the very least. Have a blessed day, and I look forward to hearing from you.

LIFE.

Thanks for an inspiring 2019

We at Axon like to move fast, but December is always a good time to pause and reflect on the biggest milestones from the year. Here's a look at what kept us busy, motivated, inspired, humbled and enlightened in 2019.

New Frontiers of Safety and Efficiency

We've defined categories before, with CEWs, body cameras and cloud-based evidence management. We're doing it again with this year's launch of two flagship products: Axon Body 3, the first LTE-connected camera with real-time situational awareness for public safety, and Axon Records, described by our partners in Fresno "an RMS system for the future." What impact will they have on agencies and communities? We can't wait to work with you to find out.

Good morning Pam,

I hope this e-mail finds you well.

Could you please look at the attached request for information? We do not employ any facial recognition software nor do we have any affiliation with the company mentioned. Additionally, we have absolutely no plans to implement any such software.

I am confident in answering "no" to questions #2 through #7. As far as #1 goes, I can answer "no" for myself and the current state of the department. Prior to me, the department never had any plans to implement facial recognition to my knowledge. As the Detective Sergeant at the time, that would have been on me to coordinate. I am reasonably certain Chief Alves never initiated any such conversations either.

I did not know if there was a manageable way of searching the acushnet.ma.us e-mails from the department to ensure we can comply with question #1. I did not want to rely 100% of my memory if I do not have to.

Thank you and stay well,

Chris
